

Elevate HR with Smarter Employee Document Management

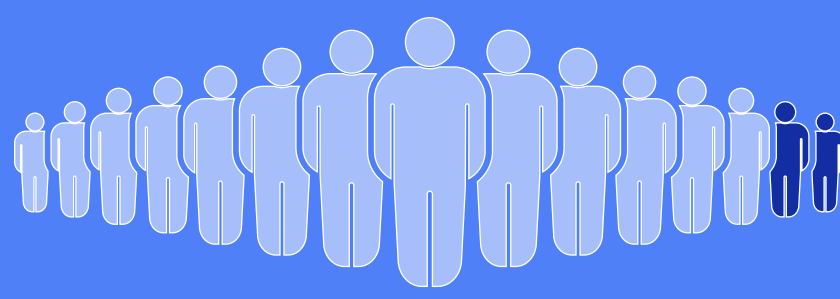

HOW TO BUILD AN AIRTIGHT BUSINESS CASE TO SAVE YOUR COMPANY TIME AND MONEY

HR is playing a more strategic role in organizations, offering insight on corporate culture, employee acquisition and retention, productivity, and compliance. But many back-end processes are stuck in the 1990s, leaving HR teams to chase down paper or digital documents and navigate files and systems that don't talk to each other. The end result is a significant hit to your business.

HR Inefficiencies

26%
HR leaders spend one quarter of their time on record-keeping and auditing employee practices.¹

91%
Managers who agree skilled employees spend too much time on administrative tasks.²

WORK SMARTER

Automate and digitize document management processes so you can spend less money on part-time admins and your team has time to tackle strategic projects.

Undisputed Unemployment Claims

$7,703
The national average cost of an unemployment claim³

$1.39 for every $1

A multi-state employer can expect to pay $1.39 in future unemployment insurance taxes for every dollar of unemployment benefits paid.⁴

WORK SMARTER

With a centralized digital document repository, HR can find the right documentation and respond to claims quickly and efficiently.

Wasted Real Estate

$20 - $40
per square foot

Sample rent for office space in the United States⁵

$4,000 - $8,000

Annual rent for a mid-sized 200-square-foot storage room, not including paper and filing cabinet costs

WORK SMARTER

By moving documents to the cloud or offsite storage, HR can stop wasting time filing and searching for documents, and free up real estate for other needs.

Regulatory Risks

$220 - $2,191

The range of cost for a mistake on a single I-9 form⁶

$11,000 - $109,550

Potential fines for a company with 10,000 employees and a 5% error rate on I-9 forms

WORK SMARTER

Intelligent document management technology flags incomplete files, as well as those due for renewal or destruction based on mandated retention schedules.
